MINE WORKERS BEATEN WITH TROOPS ON DUTY

TROUBLE AGAIN BREAKS OUT IN EASTERN OHIO

Military Atmosphere Prevails at Scene of Thursday Clash Near Cadiz.

Guardsmen March to Posts at Night as 4,000 Strikers Look on.

CADIZ, O., April 15—Disorder broke again today in the Eastern Ohio mine strike field, in spite of the fact that Ohio National guardsmen were on duty in the area.

Anticipated trouble at the Somers mine near Adena failed to materialize but at the Harmon creek mine, near Cadiz, four working miners were beaten severely by a crowd of two hundred men. The assailants slashed the tires on the automobiles of the workers. Thirty-five soldiers were rushed to the scene, but the attackers had decamped before they arrived.

A steam shovel at the Harmon creek operation was wrecked and a water main leading to the workings damaged.

Sheriff Maurice Wooster of Harrison county, said he would issue warrants for five of the invaders who were recognized.

Quiet in Somers Area

With a military atmosphere prevailing all was quiet in the area, where Thursday morning two men were shot, one fatally, when a large group of men, said to be striking miners, attempted to keep diggers from going to work in the Somers mine, near Adena.

Ohio National guardsmen, under command of Col. W. L. Marlin of Cleveland, arrived here during the night and early today 75 of the guardsmen were stationed at the Somers operation.

As they marched to the mine they were greeted with "boos" and "bad calls" by a crowd estimated by officials to number 4,000. There was no violence, however, and none of the crowd attempted to trespass on mine property. A few random shots were heard some distance from the mine.

There was no attempt to open the Somers operation today. Company officials announced that work would be resumed Monday morning.

All telephone connections leading to the mine were cut about midnight last night. The wires had been severed in about 25 different places.

Approximately 300 Ohio National guardsmen are now on duty in the area with headquarters at Cadiz. They comprise the Third batallion of the 145th infantry, Akron; the 145th service company, Columbus, and a medical detachment from Cleveland.

AWAIT MASSIE GUILTY PLEA

Expect Him To Name Himself as "Honor Slayer," with Insanity Defense.

PROSECUTION ENDS CASE

Lieutenant Goes on Stand and Gives Story of Tragic Events.

By The Associated Press

HONOLULU, April 15—Defense intimations that Lieut. Thomas H. Massie would name himself as the killer of Joseph Kahahawai and plead insanity came a step nearer materialization in the murder trial of the young navy officer and three others today.

As the prosecution closed its case, Clarence Darrow, generalissimo of the defense, called Massie to the stand and said one of the defendants would admit shooting Kahahawai in a fit of insanity. By his questioning he indicated Massie would be the one.

Tells of Identification

While his mother-in-law and co-defendant, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, wept, Massie testified his wife, Mrs. Thalia Massie, had identified the young Hawaiian and three others as her attackers. The assault, he said, had preyed not only upon her mind, but also upon his own.

Also he disclosed for the first time that it had been necessary for Mrs. Massie, suffering from fractures of the jaw, to undergo an operation after the attack to avoid becoming a mother.

Since Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and E. J. Lord were arrested Jan. 8, when police overtook their motor car containing the body of Kahahawai, no word has come from them or the other defendant, Albert O. Jones, regarding the killing.

Massie was pale under a strain as he testified.

He testified he was 27 years old and was married when he was 22 and Mrs. Massie, 16. He told of attending a dance in an outlying inn the night of Sept. 12, when Mrs. Massie was attacked after going for a walk in a nearby thoroughfare.

Finds Wife at Home

The lieutenant said he missed Mrs. Massie when the party was preparing to go home and did not locate her until he had telephoned his own house.

"Mrs. Massie answered the phone," he said, "and recognizing my voice, said, 'Come home at once; something horrible has happened.'

"I jumped in a car and rushed home. I could hear her sobbing before I could get into the house. She collapsed in my arms. Her lips were bruised, her face swollen, her clothes torn and her lips bleeding.

"I thought a truck had run over her. She said it was too horrible to tell and could only sob. She said she wanted to die."

He told how four men had been brought before Mrs. Massie the next day for identification. They were Kahahawai, Horace Ida, Henry Chang and Ben Ahakeulo.

HEART ATTACK ENDS LIFE OF WM. J. BURNS

Noted Detective Dies Suddenly at Florida Home; 72 Years Old.

STARTED IN COLUMBUS

Was Lured into Profession by Contacts with Capital City Police.

By The Associated Press

SARASOTA, Fla., April 15—William J. Burns, the detective, is dead.

The 72-year-old founder of the Burns Detective agency was the victim of a heart attack at his St. Armand's key winter home here last night. A few hours earlier, apparently in the best of health, he had assisted his family in the entertainment of guests.

He was stricken shortly after they left and died without regaining consciousness.

Friends said funeral services would be held here and the body probably placed in a vault for removal to New York for burial later in the spring. The widow and four children survive.

William John Burns' career was the realization of a boyhood dream to be a great detective.

Started Career in Ohio

A half century ago Burns followed the business of a merchant tailor in his father's shop at Columbus, Ohio. Part of his work was to cut and measure the uniforms of Columbus policemen. Through contact with his police customers, he quickly adopted the habit of interesting himself in their work.

"The detectives," Burns said many years later in explaining his entrance into detective work, "seemed to be rather deficient in vision. Naturally, I acquired the habit of making suggestions. Before I realized it, I was consulting detective of the Columbus police department, without any pay, but all the while getting something of a local reputation.

"I thought right along, during my amateur performances, that if detectives would apply common sense to their work, results probably would follow."

John E. Murphy, then chief of police, gave young Burns his big chance when he was 22 years old. It was a murder case—of no particular importance now—but it had offered tough sledding for the regulars.

Burns, the neophyte, jumped into

Slayer Caught After 18 Years Gets Life Term

By The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 15—The death sentence of Frank Pauletta, Coverdale, Pa., miner, for a murder committed 18 years ago, was commuted to life imprisonment today by Governor Conley.

Pauletta was under sentence to be hanged a week from tonight for the killing of Frank Gilberti near Clarksburg, Jan. 18, 1914. The man was sentenced to die in 1914, but escaped from jail in April of that year and disappeared.

The miner lived under the name of Louis Ross until last Jan. 6 when two Pennsylvania officers arrested him at Coverdale. Removed to Clarksburg, the prisoner admitted his identity and was resentenced to the gallows.

Governor Conley said he has given careful consideration to pleas for clemency, to protests against clemency and to reports of an investigation conducted at his direction.

"These," he said, "do not in my opinion justify clemency to a greater extent."

CASH BONUS GIVEN FARM LEADER'S O K

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 15 — The two-billion-dollar cash payment of the soldiers' bonus was indorsed today by John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers union.

While awaiting his turn to testify before the house ways and means committee, Simpson told newspaper men he was "200 per cent behind the bonus payment."

Use of a beer tax to raise the fund for making the bonus was advocated by Representative Cochran, Democrat of Missouri.

SURVEY SHOWS GAINS IN FINANCIAL TREND

Col. Ayres Notes Improvement as Money Returns to Banks.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., April 15 — Great improvement in financial conditions during the first quarter of the year is noted by Col. Leonard P. Ayres of the Cleveland Trust Co., in his monthly survey of business today.

He notes that bank suspensions have almost ceased, and money that was being held idle is being returned in a steady flow to the banks, and thus being put back into circulation.

"All over the country," says Colonel Ayres, "banks are paying down their indebtedness to the reserve banks, and credit conditions are steadily becoming easier. Nevertheless, bank loans and deposits continue to shrink because of business inactivity, and so we have the anomalous condition of continued credit deflation, when credit expansion is needed, and under conditions which should stimulate credit expansion.

Prices Continue Decline

"There is little evidence of the normal spring expansion in business activity," Colonel Ayres found. "Commodity prices continue to shrink, although at a less rapid rate than in recent months. Industrial and mining output still are declining slowly. There is little construction going on. Freight loadings on the railroads are far below normal. Despite all this a concerted and courageous drive for new business is being made everywhere by the great manufacturers of low priced automobiles. New models embody greater values than any ever before offered, and are being put before prospective buyers with every resource of salesmanship.

"In Washington real but irregular progress is being made. The congress is still struggling to reduce expenditures and to increase tax returns so as to balance the national budget, and it seems probable that it will continue its efforts until it succeeds in that difficult task.

"Our efforts to restore business activity are national or local, and scattered, and mostly directed at the prevention of breakdowns. The problem with which we are struggling is international and general. The fundamental truth which we as a nation have not yet fully grasped is that the interests that nations share in common are of far greater importance to them than are those competitive advantages for which they struggle singly. Our frontiers are those of finance, and our boundaries those of business."

Symptoms of improvement in financial and banking conditions continue to develop. But there is as yet little evidence that the business depression itself is growing any less severe, Colonel Ayres asserts. He finds, however, that business sentiment has improved notably in 1932. "This," he says, is a matter "of common observation, and in addition there is a good deal of tangible evidence that fear has recently been waning and confidence has been growing.

"There has been a notable decline in the number of bank suspensions, and money that had been held out of circulation is flowing back into the banks. These developments, he said, "are convincing evidences of an important and general improvement in business sentiment."

LINDBERGH GUARDING AGAINST 2ND HOAX

Swindle-Proof Scheme Is Sought in Child Hunt; Secrecy Shrouds Search.

By The Associated Press

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 15 — The Lindbergh baby hunt developed today into a search for a swindle-proof scheme to get Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., back.

Working secretly again, negotiators did not overlook the possibility that a second ransom attempt might lead to a repetition of the $50,000 hoax, in which Col. Lindbergh was mulcted without getting the kidnaped infant.

The colonel, it was learned, is considering a plan whereby a committee would pass on any further negotiations. The committee probably would comprise the aviator, Col. Henry Breckinridge, his attorney, Gov. A. Harry Moore of

Government Working on Kidnaping Case

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 15—The federal government has been moving secretly to invoke against the kidnapers of the infant Lindbergh the same laws that put Al Capone behind the bars.

As revealed today by the Evening Star, the government will waive its technical right to demand a tax share of the $50,000 ransom paid the kidnapers.

But internal revenue agents have been in touch with Charles A. Lindbergh at Hopewell, N. J., for some time.

They were kept advised of the negotiations centering about Dr. John F. Condon, and knew of the final arrangements for the ransom payment on April 2.

At the request of Lindbergh they remained away from the scene of the final transaction.

CLUE FOUND IN STATE TRAGEDY; 7TH VICTIM DIES

Believe Office Building Explosion May Be Linked with Theft of 300 Pounds of "High-Powered" Dynamite Near London, O.

DAMAGE OVER MILLION, ARCHITECT SAYS

Virtually All Officials, Including Governor, Join in Belief Gas Was Not Cause; Explosive Experts Summoned by White.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 15—The theory that a bomb explosion was responsible for the loss of seven lives, injuries to more than two score, and heavy damage to Ohio's new state office building, was uppermost in the minds of state, county and city officials as they launched investigations into the disaster today.

Authorities were investigating the theft of 300 pounds of "high powered" dynamite from a powder company near London, O., last week, in the belief it might have been used to bomb the structure, which was in the final stages of construction. The dynamite, the owners said, contained 16 quarts of T. N. T. to 100 pounds—a total of 48 quarts of T. N. T. which could have been extracted from the sticks.

Governor George White intimated he felt a high explosive was used in an effort to destroy the structure when, after naming an official investigating committee, he summoned explosive experts to aid in the probe. After an inspection of the building, the governor said he felt sure the explosion was not of gas origin.

After an inspection today by Harry Hake, the architect of Cincinnati, said the damage would run over $1,000,000.

With one or two exceptions, authorities believed the blast was the outcome of a plot to bomb the structure. One of the exceptions was Mayor Henry Worley of Columbus, who held to the belief that it was caused by a collection of gas

Basis of Inquiry

State and city fire officials were working on the theory that nitroglycerin or T. N. T. was the base of the explosion.

As the governor set his investigation in motion, city police were tracing clues disclosed by firemen and others. One was the strange action of an unidentified man, who, a few moments after the blast ripped through the structure, ran around one corner of the building, threw a brick through the window of a parked auto, and fled.

The gas theory was further discredited when it became known that all ventilating fans in the building were operating under test late yesterday when the explosion, centering in the southwest basement, blew out a large section of the west wall and devastated a large part of the interior.

W. F. Wiley, a member of the building commission, informed Harry Hake of Cincinnati, the architect, that the air in the structure was being changed every five minutes. He explained that at the time of the blast the ventilating fans throughout the building were being operated under a manufacturer's test.

Resume Digging

City firemen resumed their digging into the tons of debris in the basement in an effort to ascertain if any bodies were buried in the avalanche of marble, concrete and plaster which tumbled down from the upper floors. One man was known to be missing, and while it was believed he was buried in the debris, one police officer said he thought the body had been blown from the building into the nearby Scioto river.

The death list was increased to seven this morning when William Stevenson, 42, Columbus, died in a hospital of a skull fracture.

The other known dead are:

W. B. Ryder, 37, superintendent of the Alabama Marble Co.

Clyde Russell Neal, 35, of Columbus, electrician.

C. F. Carter, 30, of Nashville, Tenn.

Frank Baker of Columbus, plumber.

Donald E. Chesney, 40, decorator.

William Dokkin, 32, Detroit Bronze worker.

Coming late yesterday when 236 men were working in the structure, the explosion was first said to accumulated sewer gas, but this was abandoned when officials determined that manholes across in the vicinity of the building were securely in place.

Inflicts Fine With Theory

T. S. Brindle, state superintendent of public works, and in charge of the governor's investigation into the disaster, was first to advance the high explosive theory. Questioned as to what he thought might have caused the explosion, Mr. Brindle, of the state mines department, replied: "I have never heard of a marble dust explosion."

Two other investigators, Nold ... declared ... that it ... have been impossible for ...

WHITE NAMES PROBE GROUP

First Official Step Taken by Governor To Fix Cause of Blast.

NAMES COMMITTEE OF 6

State Building Commission Head Also Takes Prompt Action.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 15—The first official step in the investigation of the new state office building explosion, was taken by Governor George White today when he named a probing committee, and called for an explosives expert to aid the investigators.

Immediately upon his arrival at the state house from Washington, D. C., this morning, the governor conferred with other state officials and then named a committee of four with two assistants to make "a complete investigation" of the blast.

Those named were K. H. Osborne, of the Osborne Engineering Co., Cleveland; Lester Redding of Mansfield, a member of the state architect board, Donald Hoskins, Franklin county prosecutor, and F. O. Henry, state fire marshal. Appointed to assist them was T. S. Brindle, state director of public works, and J. P. Schooley, state architect.

The governor, visibly affected by the disaster, said the first and most important step for the investigators to take was to make every effort to determine the cause of the explosion. To aid in this phase of the probe, three explosive experts of the Du Pont company were sent here today.

After naming the committee, the governor met with Colonel Carmi Thompson of Cleveland, chairman, and other members of the state office building commission. Thompson outlined to him the steps he took last night. He said he wanted an investigating committee at once, with full power to proceed and expend money if necessary, because he felt not a single hour should elapse before a probe was started. The governor expressed appreciation of his actions and gave approval.

THE planetary motions bearing rule on the events of this day promise unexpected and unusual developments. In employment there may be a sudden advancement or mark of high preferment at the hands of superiors, although this may be attended by change of associations and environment. Important change, travel or new adventures of far-reaching influence on the destiny is augured, but there may be some turmoil, confusion, contention and misunderstandings, especially with writings, unless restraint be exercised.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of outstanding importance and far-reaching influence on the future life. Promotion, preferment, new projects and adventures are in order, with the mental and physical energies under high stimulus for big things. But beware strife, impetuosity, haste and litigation or trickery. Speculation and loss by theft are warned against. A child born on this day may be original, independent, adventurous, but disposed to be rash, impetuous and headstrong.

A specially designed "log book" for recording date and mileage points on oil change, chassis lubrication and other items of car upkeep that require periodic attention.

HOW DO YOU USE IT?

You don't. The Sohio man does all the "bookkeeping" for you! You merely keep the record book handy in your car. It assists the Sohio man in giving you swift, professional service.

WHERE CAN YOU GET IT?

At 750 Standard Oil Service Stations throughout Ohio.

HOW MUCH WILL IT COST?

Nothing! It is simply another of those plus services that have come to be a habit with Sohio.

Hardin County Man 102; Played with Indian Boys

KENTON, April 15—In those days women were clothes of heavy cloth, often woven by themselves, and their hands were not soft for they worked in the field and helped build the houses from hewn logs.

William Brown Bawdle, native of Roundhead in Hardin county was a boy and he did not know the word pioneer, although he played with young Indians and Ohio was a new country being made from a wilderness.

Today William Brown Bodle's life was a feeble flame and even his memories were dim. It was his birthday. He was 102 years old.

The aged man has a boast. He attended Sunday school regularly for 96 years, 1834 to 1930. Only when his strength ebbed away did he desert this devout habit. He attributed 100 years of health to temperance.

Daily Proverb—By looking at squinting people you learn to squint.—Ovid.

There's mighty little in this womanly intuition stuff. Two young women are occupying a cell in New York City as a result of selecting a plain clothes policeman for a hold-up victim.

Word from Helsingfors is to the effect that Finland is sobering up following its debauch in celebration of the restoration of booze. It isn't disclosed whether the Finnish thirst has been appeased or the supply of booze exhausted.

The use of dynamite and stench bombs having failed to attain the desired results in a war being waged by operators against managers of movie houses out in Kokomo, Indiana, three snakes were released in one of the theaters there. Even in an era of prohibition, seeing snakes crawling about doesn't add greatly to the joy of living.

Francis Lee Stuart, of New York, speaking for the American Engineering council, says that big city slums constitute the outstanding disgrace of America, and he urges an expenditure of $20,000,000,000 to correct existing conditions. Mr. Stuart neglected to state from what trees he expects the country to pick the twenty billions.

"Not printed at government expense," reads a line at the top of the first page of a printed report of a radio address made in Washington by Congressman Wright Patman, of Texas, in championship of the cashing of veterans' service certificates. To have been consistent, Mr. Patman should have paid the postage on the copies mailed out this week, instead of using his congressional frank.

The town of Tokay, world renowned because of its wine, has been inundated for several days by the waters of the Theiss and Bodrog rivers. And if there's any one thing for which the people of Tokay have less use than any other it's water.

The census taken by the agents of Prohibition Director Woodcock shows that there are now less than 20,000 speakeasies in New York City. Still, it must be something of a job for the New York authorities to overlook even so surprisingly few as twenty thousand.

As the result of heckling during the progress of a speech being made by him in his campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination in Pennsylvania, Major General Smedley D. Butler revealed for the first time that he made the charges which resulted in the court-martialing of Colonel Alexander Williams, of the marines stationed in San Diego, California, on the order of his superior, Rear Admiral Ashley D. Robertson. Having remained silent all these years, the general might well have maintained silence rather than have divulged his secret for political expediency.

The State Building Tragedy.

The indications are that the explosion, which yesterday caused seven deaths, sent a score or more of injured to hospitals and did damage estimated all the way from $500,000 to $1,000,000 to the new state office building nearing completion on the Scioto river front in Columbus, was the result of the deliberate act of man.

Marble dust, the experts say, hasn't explosive powers, if any, sufficient to cause the damage done. The experts are equally positive that sewer gas in sufficient volume to exert the force manifested in this explosion could not have accumulated in the basement of the building without being detected. Experts familiar with explosives further say that they detected in the building, following the explosion, the sweet odor such as is ever present when nitroglycerin or some nitro combination is exploded. All this goes to show that it was a case of sabotage.

Without giving more than passing thought to the monetary loss which somebody or some group must suffer, it is horrible to think that any man or any group of men would be so lost to all that stands for manhood as to proceed with deliberation to an act which was bound to prove a menace to human life. It is to be hoped that there will be developments to show that this is not the case. It is to be hoped that it will be shown that the explosion was not caused by human hands, but in the absence of such a showing, the contrary will be generally accepted.

The one thing which looms in connection with the awful happening is that there were but something over a hundred persons in the building at the time rather than the many hundreds who would have been in it had it been completed and occupied by the employes of the state. For this we may be grateful.

A Timely Rebuke.

Regardless of the effect, good or bad, the speech delivered by Alfred E. Smith before the Jefferson day banquet gathering in Washington may have been on his own or the Roosevelt candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination without regard to the possible effect it may have on the political fortunes of Democracy next November, it may be said that the utterances made by him which have attracted the most attention not only have a background of wholesome truth, but must be accepted as a pronouncement of true Americanism.

The Smith speech has been taken, probably very properly, as a rebuke to certain utterances made by Governor Roosevelt, of New York, in a recent radio address to which critical reference has heretofore been made in these columns.

"This is no time for demagogs," the former New York governor said. "I recently stated that, while I would accept a nomination for the presidency if it were tendered me by the convention, that until the convention assembled I would not be for or against any candidate, I announce tonight an exception to that statement.

"I will take off my coat and fight to the end against any candidate who persists in any demagogic appeal to the masses of the working people of this country to destroy themselves by setting class against class and rich against poor.

"At a time like this, when millions of men and women and children are starving throughout the land, there is always the temptation to some men to stir up class prejudice, to stir up the bitterness of the rich against the poor, and of the poor against the rich. Against that effort, I set myself uncompromisingly.

"I protest against the endeavor to delude the poor people of this country to their ruin by trying to make them believe that they can get employment before the people who would ordinarily employ them are also again restored to conditions of normal prosperity.

"A factory worker can not get his job back until business conditions enable the factory owner to open up again, and to promise to the great masses of working people that they can secure renewed employment by class legislation, is treachery to those working people, to the principles of the Democratic party, and to the United States itself."

There is need at this time, under present-day conditions, for just such an utterance. There is strong need for more such utterances by men of prominence that they may be brought home to every man, woman and child of understanding years throughout the length and breadth of the land. There have been far too many demagogic utterances. Such utterances possibly are inevitable in presidential years and to be expected from the politicians of smaller caliber, but they are inexcusable when coming from men who hold themselves out as of presidential size. Much as they are to be deplored under ordinary circumstances, demagogic utterances and appeals are utterly beyond excuse in a time of gross economic recession and great unemployment, and should be rebuked as Mr. Smith rebuked them in his Jefferson day address.

There may be ground for issue regarding the worth of the former New York governor's proposal for twenty years' postponement of war debt payments and that in the meantime twenty-five per cent of the annual gross value of American products purchased by a debtor nation should be credited on the debt owed by that nation. If nothing else may be said for it, there must be admission that it possesses the charm of novelty, but there can be no question of the rightness of his rebuke of those who resort to demagogic utterances, no matter who those thus offending against the very spirit of true Americanism may be. It was most timely.

Big, Medium and Little Bears.

Those tracks around Wall Street that the senate banking and currency committee thought were made by big surly bears bent on raiding the stock market actually were made by little and medium-sized bears out for innocent strolls. It isn't short-selling and bear-raiding that have hammered security prices down to the ground, but liquidation by a general public which is trying to give the United States away. Richard Whitney, president of the New York stock exchange, has been telling inquisitive senators.

Mr. Whitney, called to testify before the banking and currency committee, has defended short-selling consistently for many years, and is continuing to do so. Charges of bear-raiding give him a chuckle, because he knows that the little bears themselves innocently are doing the damage and artlessly shifting the responsibility by pointing accusing fingers at their big brothers. He claims that Wall Street has nothing to hide and that if the government wants to blame some one for stock market nervousness it would be better to blame itself for putting the general public into the market by making securities attractive through the Liberty Loan.

Point for point the investigated has come off better than the investigators, who are coming to the conclusion that most trouble starts with the little fellow at the bottom, who, because he usually is the helpless creature of circumstance, always can be persuaded to serve as the basis of the pyramid.

The senators will discover that the United States is in a bear mood, which is like discovering the salt tastes salty. And now that Pennsylvania avenue hasn't proved Wall Street guilty of harboring any bogey men, how about Wall Street investigating Pennsylvania avenue? If its causes for the hard times that are being sought that would be the more logical direction for a search.

Baby bonds to the face value of $30,000,000 were purchased during the short period they were offered to the public. The idea of offering these bonds of low denomination was to bring money out of hoarding. Possibly it did to the amount stated, but the hoardings which really count are hardly those of persons who are liable to invest in government securities of denominations so small. Thirty million dollars being liberated would hardly make a dent in the hoardings which are at present proving an economic handicap.

THE LAST LAUGH.

Editorial Opinion.

MOST FAVORED NATIONS.

Observers in London agree that the new British budget will propose a substantial increase in the ten per cent. tariff recently imposed on many imports. This will be done partly for the purpose of raising additional revenue. But it is frankly admitted that England, having abandoned, at least temporarily, her traditional policy of free trade, will attempt to use the tariff to "bargain" her way into an advantageous commerce between nations. It will be the British policy to make special concessions in tariff rates to countries prepared to offer similar favors in return. This is in line with the development of "quota" systems elsewhere, under which part of the world's trade has been parceled out among nations willing to enter into reciprocal agreements.

Can the United States, "protected" by high tariff barriers, look with indifference upon this tendency toward "bargaining" tariffs on the part of other nations? It is frequently assumed that because of our "most favored nation" treaties we shall automatically inherit the advantage of any arrangements at which other countries may arrive, that if England and Argentina, for example, agree to lower tariffs on each other's exports, they will be obliged to make similar reductions in favor of American goods. But this assumes that both England and Argentina are bound by treaty to give us "most favored nation" treatment. Neither of them is, nor are most of the other important commercial nations so committed. We have many "conditional" agreements and arrangements for a "modus vivendi," but unconditional "most favored nation" treaties only with Austria-Hungary, Germany, Turkey, China and eight smaller nations. These countries purchased less than twelve per cent. of our exports in 1930.

It is evident in these circumstances that many of the most important markets for our goods will be affected by such special concessions as England and other nations may arrange among themselves. We shall have no cause to complain when this occurs. For we can scarcely demand from each country all the favors it bestows on others while we offer no equivalent in return.—New York Times.

OUTRAGE ON AGRICULTURE.

Of all the outrages on agriculture, not stumbled into by accident but deliberately to be riveted on our necks, we are beginning to think the Columbia Basin project takes the cake.

We have watched this scheme for years, as it slowly wormed its way into the reclamation picture, and planned to jockey congress into a helpless position. At no distant date, the plans will be matured, and the screws applied. It is up to agriculture to see that congress has sufficient backing to stiffen its backbone to say "No!"

Who wants it? Farmers on established farms in the rest of the country do not want it. They already have 300,000,000 unused acres which could be put in crops, if the present acreage were not enough to supply the nations needs. Who then do want it?

First, owners of the land, now mostly dry and worthless.

Second, real estate dealers and promoters.

Third, many politicians, who think they gain by posing as "empire-builders."

Fourth, contractors, dam-builders, engineers and turbo-generator manufacturers.

Fifth, the bureaucrats of the reclamation service, whose specialty is bankrupt settlers on bankrupt irrigation projects.

Ah, but the power, they say. We want the waterpower from the great river to develop our splendid empire. That, alas, is camouflage. No private power company would risk a cent in plans to manufacture power for a non-existent market.

We do not believe that the farming population of this country will permit this crowning folly and outrage on agriculture to go through. Certainly we propose to see that at least the facts about it are fully understood.—Farm Journal.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Monday, April 15.

Judge William E. Scofield ordered the property of the Ohio Milling & Elevator company reappraised as it had failed to sell under the old appraisement of $11,814.81.

But half awake from a nap he had been taking, J. P. Gerhart, hearing Farming street, his destination, called by the conductor of a Columbus, Marion & Bucyrus car, stepped off the car while it was yet running at a good clip and received some cuts and bruises.

More than 100 couples attended a ball given by Marion Company, No. 15, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias.

John Schweckendick, a local gardener, was thrown from his wagon and badly injured when his horse ran away.

Modern Medicine Fights Asthma.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Asthma has been known to mankind for centuries. During recent years great strides have been made in its treatment and cure. This is well, because of all the distressing conditions encountered in life, asthma is one of the most troublesome.

Too often persons afflicted with asthma believe that the disease is incurable. In consequence they do not seek medical attention. This is unfortunate.

A complete physical examination by a physician is necessary before relief and successful treatment can be expected. In the examination all abnormalities are noted and where possible they are corrected. Habits of diet and manner of living are carefully considered.

Unhygienic conditions or any habit which tends to reduce the resistance of the patient, must be overcome. Focal infections, such as diseased nasal sinuses, teeth, tonsils, appendix, gall bladder or intestines, require immediate attention. Please bear in mind that the treatment of asthma is not complete unless these steps are taken.

It is now known that many attacks of asthma are caused by sensitivity to certain proteins. These proteins may be in the food, in the clothing or in the house furnishings. Their effects vary with different individuals. Skin tests are used to determine the substance which causes the attacks.

One of the methods of controlling this disease is its treatment by what is called "desensitization." To this end injections are made under the skin, or by scratching the skin. Various substances are used. They are classified according to groups.

The most common group is the "inhalant group." This group includes the things which may be taken in by breathing. The materials used in testing are taken from the chicken, duck, goose, cat, dog, horse, rabbit, sheep and goat.

Many persons are sensitive to the emanations from certain plants and weeds. The offending one can be determined by the skin tests. The most common plants in this group are timothy, plantain and ragweed. The different foods can be tested for in a similar manner, as well as house dust, tobacco and other irritants to which the individual may be exposed.

When the sensitivity is determined and contact with the offending substance is removed, freedom from asthmatic attacks results. In certain cases where the sensitivity is due to unknown proteins protective injections have been used. These are given at weekly intervals and in some cases the results have been gratifying.

Study has been given a large number of cases of asthma thought to be caused by sensitivity to house dust. Such dust contains a number of elements, some of which are capable of producing asthmatic attacks. The sensible thing is to live in an environment free from dust, but this is often impossible. To overcome the trouble an extract has been made from house dust collected in a carpet sweeper. It is claimed that its use has resulted in relief. This sounds astonishing, but the poor asthmatic will grasp at anything.

Because of our greater knowledge of asthma, permanent relief and cure can be brought about in many cases. Treatment over a long period may be necessary. But do not become discouraged, because the result is well worth the time and effort.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Mrs. J. B. Q.—I have had a pain or ache in the back of my head and neck. I have used a liniment with not much benefit. My eyes are not responsible. What would you advise?

A.—This may be caused by some infection, such as decayed or abscessed teeth, diseased tonsils, some intestinal or kidney condition or to possible high blood pressure. A thorough examination should fix the cause and determine the necessary treatment.

Russia Behind Schedule.

BY KENDALL FOSS

Moscow, April 15—I.N.S.—Grain collections are behind schedule. On the first of February, the date set by the government for completing the job, ten per cent of the program remained unfilled, according to Pravda, the newspaper of the Communist party. Since then collections have remained slow, according to official reports, giving rise to the opinion among many well-informed observers that the collectable supply is about exhausted.

Throughout the winter reports from the Ukraine and from the big grain area of Kazakstan in Central Asia indicated these districts were failing rapidly behind schedule.

The Ural district and the North Caucasus area had been hit by drought and were doing poorly. Western Siberia was also proving disappointing.

It should be emphasized, however, that this disappointment arose from a failure to reach the plans set for 1931 and not from the existence of a really poor crop. The crop, according to all available indications, was average; the trouble lay in expecting to exceed 1930's bumper harvest materially.

Heavy pressure was brought by the central party organization in Moscow upon local and district cells the moment it became obvious collections were lagging. These local organizations had in turn to bring pressure on the peasants to come through with more and still more.

Quotas are fixed by Moscow long before the harvest. These quotas are set high. Local organizations may think the quota assigned to them to collect is absurdly and impossibly high, but they naturally do not dare say so. To demur would be "opportunism," a deadly crime in the Communist calendar. They have no choice but to try to squeeze still more out of the reluctant peasantry.

No figures are given this year on the actual amounts of grain collected; it is all expressed in percentages of the plan which in turn is expressed in percentages of the previous year's plan. However, it may safely be stated that a ten per cent. failure of the plan represents many hundreds of thousands of tons.

In addition to the failure to come up to planned expectations, the crop available for consumption is further cut down by extra large levies for the Red army. Every year several million tons are set aside in the so-called "untouchable" reserve. This year every indication points to the fact that more than usual is being so earmarked, for the conviction persists that the day may not be far off when the army will need every bit it can find.

In order to come up to scratch and fill the quotas imposed by Moscow, local organizations have often had to resort to seizing all the grain grown by various peasants. "Kulaks," rich peasants, though they could not be counted really very "rich," are always fair game for collecting committees. And if all the Kulaks in a given district have been sold up and sent into exile, well, there are always a few fairly well to-do peasants who can, in a pinch, be denounced as Kulaks. This may be rough on the individual, but it undoubtedly does help the local committees fill their quotas and thus keep out of trouble with the party.

"Good, Decent and Middling Banks."

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

Those of us who have lived all our lives under a national coin and currency system such that we need never give a moment's consideration as to the value of the money taken in in course of our business, can hardly appreciate the handicap under which our ancestors in Ohio labored in carrying on business with the old wildcat bank system, when one could hardly tell from day to day what bank issues were good and what not.

Here is a table published in the Detroit Gazette in November, 1819, intended to give its readers the best information to be had as to the standing of banks in Ohio assuming to issue bank notes. It gives the names of fifteen Ohio banks which it classifies under three heads with the titles "good," "decent" and "middling."

Under the class marked "good," it listed the Bank of Cincinnati, the Bank of Lancaster, the Bank of Steubenville, the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Scioto, the Bank of Marietta, Western Reserve Bank, and the Bank of Mt. Pleasant.

Under the class "decent," it listed the Bank of West Union, the Farmers, Manufacturers and Mechanics' bank, of Cincinnati, the Bank of Columbus, and the Bank of Dayton.

The "middling" class included the Lebanon-Miami Banking company, the Zanesville Canal and Manufacturing company, the Bank of Urbana and the Bank of Muskingum.

Here is a bank statement of one of the best Ohio banks of the day which is interesting in comparison with the statements of Ohio banks issued today. It is of the John H. Platt & Company bank of Cincinnati:

Resources: Real estate, $87,994; bills receivable, $174,452.14; drafts on New Orleans, $68,368.68; drafts on sundry places and cash on hand, $49,096.72; due from individuals $17,852.61; advanced on steamboat General Pike $14,600. Total $412,364.15. Liabilities: Notes in circulation $242,783; drafts or bills payable $64,514; due depositors $19,637.28. Total $326,934.28. Balance in favor of bank, $85,429.87. Secured by J. H. Platt's estate valued at $412,364.15; grand total $626,302.35.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, April 15—Speaker John Nance Garner—"Happy Jack" Garner to almost everybody in Washington—revealed himself in a new light when he arose on the floor of the house to urge that sufficient revenue be raised to balance the nation's budget.

During the some thirty years he has represented the Fifteenth Texas district in the house, Garner has distinguished himself chiefly by his ability to tongue-lash political opponents engage in the most fiery kind of rough and tumble debate, and to be everlastingly at the job of fighting.

As Democratic leader he seemed never happier than when engaged in that sort of thing.

He permitted no emotion—unless it be that of righteous political indignation—to show itself in his actions.

It was a different Garner, however, who descended from the speaker's dais to the well of the house to tell his colleagues what he thought about the tax situation.

It was a Garner whose high-pitched voice raised so often there in scathing denunciation became at times so husky that it hardly carried as far as the galleries. It was a Garner profoundly moved and serious, making a common plea to Democrats and Republicans alike.

He had taken his seat by the side of the baby member of the house—Mobley, of Georgia, twenty-five years old—until Bankhead presiding, recognized him.

Once he jumped to his feet seeking recognition, but was told by Bankhead to wait until the proper parliamentary moment had arrived.

He did so, and a few minutes later made the familiar request "to strike out the last word," and amid cheers from a house on its feet began.

That he had his listeners with him all the way seemed certain. The nearest thing to an interruption came when he said that he was an organization man—that nothing could be done without organization.

Interjections of "Sure," "Certainly!" and one emphatic "Absolutely!" were heard from the Republican side of the aisle.

His conclusion was greeted with more cheers and deafening applause, about everybody standing. "Ike" Bacharach, probably one of the speaker's closest friends, a Republican, and Mrs. Mary Norton, a Democrat, both from New Jersey, made a rush for him to grasp his hand.

It was another personal victory for the gentleman from Uvalde, Texas.

BOMB PLOT SEEN IN OFFICE BLAST

Probes of State Tragedy Pushed as Seventh Victim Dies.

the building without being detected.

Assistant Fire Chief C W Ogborn of the Columbus fire department and the first official to enter the wrecked $6,000,000 building, said he detected no heat or fumes, such as would have followed a gas explosion.

Further, investigators pointed out that the focal point of the explosion appeared to have been immediately beneath a room occupied as an office by Charles Martin, superintendent of construction, for Harry F. Hake of Cincinnati, the architect

Martin s duties included handling of labor disputes.

Great marble slabs were tossed into the air, ponderous ornamental doors were wrenched from their hinges and tons of shattered concrete and twisted steel rumbled down within the building, after the blast.

The force of the explosion demolished the central interior portion of the building from the basement to the eleventh floor. One side of the building, facing the Scioto river was torn away

Survivors Tell Experiences

Lurid pictures of the disaster were painted by survivors They said the explosion, apparently centering in the southwest corner of the basement, tore upward and outward, lifting into the air a section of the west wall 25 feet high and 200 feet long

Among the first bodies recovered was that of Clyde Russell Neal, an electrician, whose twisted figure was tossed from the building and into the new boulevard along the river.

Homer Richter, Columbus police photographer, was near the building when the explosion occurred He said clouds of thick white dust poured from almost every opening on the lower floors.

"Then," he recounted, "I heard men screaming and crying for help As the smoke cleared, I saw men lying in the gutters. Whether they ran there or were carried by the blast, I don't know. They were bleeding, and some had most of their clothing burned away"

The building is 360 feet long 80 feet wide and 13 stories high. The outwalls are of white Georgia marble It faces on the Scioto river on the western edge of the Columbus business district

Built to house all of the offices of the state, with exception of those of the governor, the adjutant general, the secretary of state, treasury and auditor, and subdivisions of their offices, the structure was planned to prove adequate until 1950.

Dedication Planned for May

Dedicatory ceremonies tentatively had been set for May. Preparations had been made to move the office equipment and supplies of the various departments to the new building.

State officials said they believed the loss of approximately $1,000,000 would be covered by a $3,000,000 bond given by the Struck Construction Co of Cincinnati, general contractors.

Additional protection was seen in a $400,000 insurance policy Hake, the architect, believed embraced loss by explosion.

As officials prepared to press an investigation, Governor White received a telegram from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and member of the state office building commission, saying he was "greatly distressed and terribly shocked" at the news of the "awful explosion."

During construction, which consumed almost two years, labor fights among workers who questioned the right of various building trade organizations to do various jobs, were frequent.

A labor fight over construction of conduits for the heating plant reached the supreme court. An open shop competitor protested that it first had been awarded the job. The state supreme court awarded the contract to the United Heating Inc., of Cleveland. State officials then protested, arguing the awarding of the contract to a company employing non-union workers would cause union workers to quit. .

However, the supreme court held that every worker had a right to continue his labor or quit, as he saw fit.

Labor troubles continued, with plasterers on strike at one time for several weeks. Hardly had they returned to work than painters and ornamental iron workers quit because of differences of opinion.

Thompson Deeply Moved by Tragedy

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 15— Intended as a beautiful and lasting monument to the progress of the state of Ohio, the new office building today stands as a tomb to those who met death within the marble walls late yesterday

This is the view of the disastrous explosion as expressed today by Colonel Carmi Thompson, of Cleveland, chairman of the state office building commission.

Moved deeply by the blast, in which six men died and more than 50 were hurt, the colonel, after setting the investigating machinery in motion, said "A few days ago, as I inspected the state office building, I was struck with the thought that the commission had erected a structure which would stand forever as a beautiful Ohio monument. Now we have nothing left us but the thought that we have had a part in creating the scene of one of the state's greatest catastrophes

It is terrible, this loss of life and these injuries. Until last week we had not experienced an accident of any kind on the building Its record was clean Now all that is wiped out, and instead of having had a structural job on our hands, it has evolved into a legal, financial and engineering problem."

No Trace of Only Man Still Missing

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 15— The lone man missing in yesterday's explosion at the state office building is R T Pfefferle, 28, a carpenter, nephew of Municipal Judge Ben L. Pfefferle, of Columbus. He was working on the structure, and his car was found parked nearby. Other workers said he was inside when the explosion came, and it was the general belief he was buried under the tons of debris in the basement.

There was one theory that the body would be found in the Scioto river, which passes directly in front of west side of the building. Patrolman Norwood Folk, standing at city hall when the blast came, said he saw an object resembling a body hurtling through the air and into the stream.

THAT CHALLENGES ROUGH TREATMENT

Lowe Brothers NEPTUNITE FLOOR VARNISH (Quick-drying) actually challenges rough treatment. And here are the reasons why:

Pinned to the shirt was a roll of bills totaling $1,100. His parents lost confidence in banks, he said, and were afraid to hide the money or hold it in their own possession so they pinned it to him on the assumption that no one would ever suspect him of having that much money.

Mayor John Murphy told the story at a Rotary meeting and added that the family had been receiving charity from the city, which promptly was cut off.

Hunting Wolves on Riversides

Hammond, Nebr.

Montgomery Ward & Co.
Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:
Am sending picture of 12 coyote skins, myself, dogs, and car. This car equipped with Riversides travels all over our country in the roughest places; in fact where some people would not think of riding a horse. I have spent over 20 years wolf hunting with dogs, in the past few years using cars, and your tires I will put up against anyone's tires. They stand more hard knocks, last longer and I can depend on them. I wouldn't trade one Riverside for any 2 tires I ever used.
Yours for better tires,
Ben Ammon

This interesting letter from Mr. Ammon is one of many hundreds in our files. It was entirely voluntary—sent to us without solicitation. Nothing was paid for it. It is a genuine expression of gratitude for meritorious service.

Gives Party on Birthday

Mrs. Lena Spratt of 245 Jefferson street celebrated her birthday anniversary by giving a party last evening for a group of friends.

FRIEND TOLD HIM ABOUT ALL-BRAN

And It Brought Relief From Constipation

Those who are bothered with constipation for years. A friend of mine told me to try ALL-BRAN. I have taken ALL-BRAN for the past six weeks as a breakfast food. It has regulated my bowels as clockwork. Now I would not be without a package at all times." — Mr. Leslie Gelpke, 273 Ridgewood Ave., Newark, N. J.

Common constipation—with its headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness — is due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. Both are present in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Being a natural corrective, ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily — serious cases with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

OLYMPIC ASPIRANT

Anna Govednik of Chisholm, Minn., is only 15 years old, but in a Minnesota state meet she swam 100 yards in 1:18 using the breast stroke, so she has ambitions to rate the United States Olympic team.

The evening was spent with music Lunch was served to Mr. and Mrs Clifford Orians, Mr. and Mrs George Orians, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Orians and son Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cull and son Robert Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Orians and daughters Starling and Edith, Mrs. Flora Hatcher, Mrs Anna Fuller, Mrs. Pearl Hines and son Roffiel, Mrs. Ella Orians, Mrs. Marie Gaster and son Robert, Glen Bollinger, Clarence Cole, George Butler and Charles Bowers.

THIRTY-NINE

have time to call Miss Bixby mumbled. her aside; she gigee and threw it ders as she ran to To her agonized senses as if there was a crowd bed, the night nurse. she pushed them her way. How stand so between her came up behind her, hands on her to draw n't a minute. Mrs. went to sleep like—

The words came ngly. mbolus, Mrs. Frew. It etimes—" er come away, Mrs.

Kitty put out her hands "Go—go, all of you. I'm—I'm all right. Oh, go, please—He's mine, I tell you!"

On an afternoon four months later Ketchum street had baked under the August heat. But in late afternoon a little breeze sprang up to bring a saving freshness to the heavy air. It stirred the curtains at Dorcas Taber's open windows.

Kitty lifted the shades which she had drawn against the merciless sun. It was 6 o'clock. Dorcas would be home soon. Supper was ready—iced tea in the big glass pitcher, fragrant with mint, a big bowl of green salad, thin slices of chicken.

She set a table close to the windows where they could feel the little breeze. Three places—David would come.

Perhaps he'd had some word from his publishers. When she heard a step on the sairs she ran to open the door.

"David, have you heard?"

He laughed at her eagerness. He drew a long breath. "Say, this is cool here!"

"But, David, have you heard?"

He took a yellow slip of paper from his pocket and put it in her hand.

"'Little Lady' is all that we expected. We are in luck." She read the telegram aloud.

"Oh, David, I'm so glad! But I knew it was good."

"Well, that's that. What have you been doing today?"

He was regarding her with close anxiety. Her face, thinner now, was colorless, her eyes, with their sober, hurt look, seemed wider, deeper-set and the long lashes made little shadows against the transparency of her cheeks. Her steady smile stabbed David's heart.

"Oh, I'm fine! I've stayed in today and it hasn't been bad here at all. I've been very busy." She nodded toward a sewing basket.

Kitty had been living in the house on Ketchum street since that day in April, when, bewildered, her heart a dead thing, she had put her hand in David's. "Take me—away." The heavy fragrance of flowers had filled the empty rooms of the Frew house. Jones had been moving things in the drawing-room. Miss Bixby had been running up the wide stairs, a glass in her hand. A door had shut somewhere.

David had taken Kitty to Dorcas.

Dorcas had given her her own room, using another room on the floor for herself.

"I'm all right!" Kitty had said, bravely. "Just tell me something to do."

And Dorcas had found small tasks for her. "If you'll get my scrap book into shape you'll save my sanity." She dumped an accumulation of clippings into Kitty's empty hands.

Kitty had refused David's urging to go back to Bridgewater.

"Oh, no, David."

She never talked of Gar; what of longing and sorrow and loneliness she suffered she hid behind her steady smile, her sober, hurt eyes.

The Frew house was closed. Mrs. Frew, after weeks of prostration, had gone to California, taking Miss Bixby with her. Dalton Frew was living at his club. Carol and Paul Somerset were occupying the rooms over the garage on Elmwood terrace. David had told Kitty all this but she had listened indifferently as if those people of whom he spoke were strangers to her.

She never thought of her brief resentment against Dorcas, or of what had been its cause; if she had thought of it she would have put it with the things that did not matter.

All these weeks David had watched her with deep concern. He'd seen her grow thinner, paler.

"If I could reach her—" he'd think, torn himself, suffering for her.

Now he helped her put the finishing touches to the supper. "I saw Dorcas at the Times office. She said she might be a little late."

He went to the window and stood there, his back to her. "I had a long talk with dad, today, Kitty. He's terribly low. He's had a letter from—Mrs. Frew. She's not coming back here.

"I think it would make him happy—Kitty, he wants you to take an allowance. It's in the bank, anyway, in your name. It's yours, by all rights. Kitty, there's a job for you!"

She did not answer for a moment; when she spoke it was in a slow voice.

"I'm sorry for him. I'm terribly sorry, David. I'm not angry at any one, why should I be? I'm not angry at—her. I had Gar—in the end." It was the first time, of her own accord, she had spoken of Gar.

He waited for her control to break. But she went on steadily; "What can I do, David?"

"He hates it, cooped up at the club. He's frightfully worn. I was thinking, Kitty—I wish the two of you would go out to the little house for a few weeks. I think it would set dad up wonderfully. Mrs. Dundy's daughter could come over to help you. I'll run out now and then just to see how you're getting on. There's another thing—I saw Carol today. Things are going very badly with her and Somerset. I mean money. Would it be too big a favor—?" He turned toward her a...viously.

The tears were streaming down Kitty's cheeks. Behind them her eyes glowed, dark, deep with feeling. She put her face against his arm.

"Oh, David, you're so kind!"

He stiffened himself against the desire to take her in his arms. His mouth set sternly though in his eyes lay a great tenderness.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Bill Is Rewarded When Marion Gives Him the Honor of the First Dance.

FOR a few minutes after the orchestra sounded the first strains of the dance music, no one at the little tables stirred.

"Your first course is too delicious to miss," Mr. Veritzen said gallantly; and, indeed, his opinion appeared to be shared by everyone. The younger people were swift trenchermen, however, and it was not long before I saw Bob Trevelan's chum take Carolyn out upon the floor, followed closely by Noel, dutifully dancing his first dance with Avis, whom he had escorted to the party rebelliously, I knew.

Others of the young people slipped into place on the floor, but my eyes and ears were focused upon Marion opposite to me. She was seated next to Bill, whose boyish eyes were fixed upon her in unconscious pleading, but who was heroically keeping his promise to me to leave Marion unhampered in her choice as to the first dance. I regretted the pledge I had exacted, as I saw Charles Owen lean across the table and heard him say "Will you dance?"

But Marion herself justified the ruse I had played. I had wanted to see what her reaction was now to the man who had so fascinated her that we were all afraid she would yield to his pleading that she marry him. But more than that I was anxious to know if anything—even Owen's supposed attraction for her—would induce her to snub Bill, who had been her boyish, devoted shadow all Summer, especially in evidence during Ronald's apparent absorption in Mary.

Bill Is Rewarded

"I should love to, later," she said, "but this first dance has been promised to Bill for ever so long. Come on Bill."

Bill rose, looking as if someone had presented him with a fortune, and proudly led his liege lady out to the floor, where all the younger people were now dancing. His face was radiant, but I had no time to look at it, for my eyes were fixed upon Charles Owen's face. Owen was too schooled in craft to show any emotion openly, but I was directly opposite to him, and I caught a flash of his eyes as Marion danced away that reminded me of that shown by some feral animal when suddenly angered. The next instant he had drawn the veil again, and sat watching the dancers as if he were in the front row of a theater critically inspecting a performance.

"How about it, Dicky-bird?" Harry Underwood spoke across my table. "The youngsters are all on the floor."

"Yes, now's the best time," Dicky answered, and Harry, rising, made his way to the door.

"Shall we dance?" Mr. Veritzen asked.

A Perfect Effect

"Wait just a minute," I said breathlessly, and then Harry touched the switch controlling the pastel-shaded revolving lights, and the next moment the dancers were bathed in the exquisite, soft tints.

The young people, with one accord, stopped dancing and seconded the applause that the older people at the tables were giving. I stole a glance at Edith Fairfax and found her applauding with the rest, evidently deeding that it was useless to claim the credit for these effects.

"It is perfect," Mr. Veritzen said, as we rose and went out upon the dancing floor. "I suppose you are responsible."

"I wish I were," I responded fervently, "but the whole credit for those lighting effects must go to Harry Underwood and my husband. They worked them out together."

"I should have recognized Underwood's touch," Mr. Veritzen said quickly. "He is a genius, that lad."

Watching the Scene

"Yes, isn't he?" I responded perfunctorily, but I could have dealt him a furious blow for the covert slight to Dicky that I knew was in his comment. Fortunately for me the rest of the older people, with the exception of my father, my mother in law and Lee Chow, came out upon the dancing floor as if with one accord, and although the space was more than that in the usual night club, still we were sufficiently crowded to make conversation undesirable.

I pleaded fatigue before the dance was over, partly because I wished to watch the others and partly on Mr. Veritzen's account, for I guessed that his inclination and ambition were greater than his breathing capacity in the long, swift modern dance.

"Those girls in their filmy draperies, bathed in those pastel lights, look as if they were floating through space," he said, just as Avis Arlen and Noel passed our table.

With a swift, feline impulse to have him see something that I was observing, but salving my conscience with the reflection that everything was fair in my fight for the happiness of Mary and Noel, I spoke hurriedly.

"Miss Arlen is an especially exquisite picture," I said, "and how thoroughly she is enjoying herself!"

Hemorrhoids Go Quick

All Pile Misery Ended Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an intenal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when Henney & Cooper invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of [illegible] back if it does not [illegible]

Democratic Harmony
Cantor and Cable
Science and Crime
Playing at War

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

SAN SIMEON, Calif., April 15—Democracy's campaign starts, as usual, with a fight. One conspicuous candidate tells another under what conditions the first will take off his coat and knock the other Democrat into a cocked hat.

Candidates agree that prohibition is a big question. Each has an opinion different from that of all the others, except cautious candidates that have no opinion, and answer, "I love my country," when asked what they think about beer. This situation does not hurt the feelings of Herbert Hoover, only Republican candidate.

DEMOCRATS, in their love for each other, recall a story that Mr. Edward Cantor, young actor, has told to Horace Lorimer, young editor.

Mr. Cantor took Mrs. Cantor to see Clark Gable, and, says Cantor, when Gable took Joan Crawford in his arms, "my wife, who watched the picture closely, said 'phooey.' A few minutes later at another passionate scene she said 'phooey' again.

"Well, I thought, here at last is a woman who sees nothing in Gable. Toward the end of the picture, when I heard her say 'phooey' a third time, I turned to the star's defense. 'Ida,' I protested, 'that's Clark Gable. Why do you say phooey?' She snapped back, 'Keep quiet. I was thinking of you.'"

MAKERS of big guns and armor plate have long competed, armor plate men trying to develop steel that no bullet can penetrate; gunmakers perfecting guns able to penetrate anything.

A similar conflict for supremacy exists now between crime and science, with crime, as yet, far ahead.

Science's latest hope, announced by the Westinghouse company of Pittsburgh, is a device of tubes and cells that will photograph a burglar, sounding an alarm at the police station and gassing the burglar, as well, besides turning on bright lights the moment he crosses an "invisible ray." Burglars will cut off the invisible ray, as they now cut telephone wires and poison watchdogs. The only way to discourage crime is to make it more dangerous and less profitable. Our present conditions make it highly profitable and not dangerous.

In New York, for instance, a criminal in a holdup, in the absence of police, knows that he is the only armed man present. Think of that advantage.

ONE HUNDRED and four surface ships, including ten battleships, have completed maneuvers off this coast, the roar of the big guns rattling dishes in Pasadena, back of Los Angeles.

Two hundred aircraft were included in the mock warfare, thank heaven. Had the number been two thousand it would have been about half enough.

The public, the President, the war and navy secretaries do not get all the facts concerning war practice.

In recent mock warfare off Hawaii, 25 transports loaded with troops were supposed to be convoyed by 10 fighting ships and attacked by "innumerable aircraft."

Officially it was reported that had the war been real the loss of men killed by bombardment on the transports would have been seven thousand, not a high percentage. Officers on their return told friends that had it been real war every transport would have been sunk, all on board lost and many, if not all the convoying warships would have been sunk as well.

This country needs the world's biggest fighting air fleet and submarine fleet, and the most highly developed explosives and war gases, not to hurt any one minding his own business, but as a warning to our dear friends across both oceans.

SMOKED 58,690 CIGARS

PETALUMA, Cay.—(U. P.)—Police Judge Charles N. Collins, who recently celebrated his 90th birthday by smoking his usual seven cigars, estimated he had smoked 58,690 of them to date.

OPENING OF ANTI-DRY CONCLAVE

Mrs. Charles Sabin, of New York, chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, is shown as she addressed the organization's third annual conference at Washington, D. C., to discuss methods for the repeal of the dry laws. Mrs. Sabin said that most of our national ills are traceable to prohibition. She also linked the kidnaping of the Lindbergh to the activities of bootleggers.

NEW SHREDDED BISCUITS OFFER MANY ADVANTAGES

Local Grocers Say Customers Delighted with Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit

Grocers are now featuring a new shredded biscuit which offers many new features. Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are "pressure-cooked" by a special process that retains the complete food value of the whole wheat. At the same time, delightful flavor is baked in.

These new biscuits have been analyzed by the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia and found to be so rich in food value that every package is certified. Any mother can now be certain her family is getting a well-balanced and tempting dish whenever she serves these new Kellogg biscuits with either hot or cold milk or cream.

Other improvements are a biscuit of more convenient, economical size. Two of these new biscuits just fit the cereal bowl. You also get 15 to the package instead of the usual dozen. And every biscuit is toasted a rich golden brown on both top and bottom—not just one side. This makes them exceptionally crisp and appetizing.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are tasty for breakfast, lunch, children's suppers. Extra good with fruits or sweetened with honey.

You can identify these new biscuits by the name, Kellogg's, and the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Bring a touch of SPRING to breakfast

...the family will welcome Kellogg's Rice Krispies these mornings. Delicious, toasted rice bubbles that are so crisp they crackle in milk or cream. What could be more refreshing—or so much of a change from the heavy, hot dishes of winter!

And truth to tell, we don't need so many heavy, hot foods in this age of steam-heated houses and closed automobiles. Cold weather just isn't what it used to be. That's why red flannels and bed warmers have disappeared—and why crisp, delicious cereals are becoming more and more popular.

Kellogg's Rice Krispies are rich in energy, easy to digest. Splendid for children's meals. Economical and healthful. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Quality guaranteed.

Bad Luck Nothing to Reds This Year--They Win Anyway

CUBS TAKE ANOTHER BEATING AT HANDS OF HOWLEY CHARGES

Lombardi Out 10 Days; Cleveland Loses to Tigers, 3-1; Cards Stopped.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dan Howley, the sartorially correct manager of the Cincinnati Reds already is playing in tough luck and the National league season is just three days old

The Reds second game of the campaign, cost them the services of Ernie Lombardi, the catcher with the rifle arm and the massive Schnozzola, and of George Grantham, veteran second baseman.

Lombardi stopped a foul tip with his right index finger and the broken bone that ensued will keep him on the bench for at least 10 days Grantham twisted his ankle

Can't Be Stopped

But even with these two cogs out for repairs, the Reds punched out a 5-3 decision over the Chicago Cubs yesterday They did it by the simple expedient of batting around in the first inning. Doubles by Wally Gilbert and Clyde Manion and triples by Babe Herman and Hickey Heath plus a hit batsman and a walk gave the Reds five runs in that frame Behind that lead Red Lucas worked easily Lolding the Cubs to eight hits

In the only other National league struggle of the day, the Pittsburgh Pirates pounded Paul Derringer for 15 hits and trimmed the world champion St Louis Cardinals 5-4.

In the American league Sam Gray allowed only five hits as St Louis turned back the Chicago White Sox, 3-0, the second shutout of the major league season.

Cleveland Beaten

Whitlow Wyatt had the better of a pitching duel with Willis Hudlin and Detroit defeated Cleveland 3-1. Wyatt allowed four hits and struck out seven.

Weather conditions held other American league clubs idle but at Philadelphia Connie Mack, venerable manager of the champion Athletics announced Roger Cramer would replace the veteran Bing Miller in the outfield. Cramer is just starting his second term with the A's.

TITLE "BUG" BITES EPWORTH NO. 1 CLUB

Clark Proteges Can See Nothing but Championship of First Church League.

Note: This is the fifth of a series of stories dealing with prospects of the various city recreational baseball teams.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

After having taken it on the chin for two seasons hand running, John Clark's Epworth No. 1 softball combination is out this year to make amends for previous poor showings Whether the club will accomplish its avowed intention of climbing back onto the top of the heap only time will tell On paper such a thing doesn't appear likely to take place There are other teams in the circuit which loom stronger than the proteges of Clark. Clark has few men in his lineup who can be listed in the realm of stars but he has a team that is sufficiently strong to be a contender most of the way. As for winning out in the end—well, perhaps, but it's not likely.

There is one thing certain about the Clark team In Hack Wilson, it has the best backstopper in the city and one of the most dangerous hitters Wilson will do most of the catching Bill Woods will again be in the utility role.

In the box Clark will make his choice between Bob Gamble and Zig Snyder. Both are good hurlers and while not tossing them across the plate Snyder is a valuable man to have around first base. Clark's biggest pitching difficulty will be in getting Bob Gamble going before the sun starts pounding at the top of the thermometer. Gamble is a whiz when hot weather gets around but during the cooler early-game weather his control is generally missing

The Epworth infield is not spectacular but fairly dependable. Ralph Roseberry is the best of the infielders both afield and at the plate He is not a long hitter but good for a single most any time. Snyder will be at first most of the time with Roseberry at second, Ed Fisher or Francis Bacon will do the shortstopping and either Kenneth Fields, Everett Miller or Pete Bower will be at third.

Bower is returning to the Clark lineup after a year's absence and is the outstanding candidate for the hot corner job. John Pickerel and Bob Bush, both youngsters, and Scott Duncan, are other infield possibilities Pickerel played some with Clark last season but did not win a regular post

In the outfield, John Dowler, a heavy hitter, Merle Virden and Marion Hinklin will probably hold sway most of the time Ivar Hunsman and Forest Roush may be able to break into the lineup .. may Dick McAninch when he returns from college in June.

Considerable batting punch but an erratic infield sums up the Clark combine. If the club gets off to a good start it may be able to crash through for the gonfalon but the odds are all against it

Next team: Lee Street Presbyterians.

SPRINGFIELD O, April 15 The Springfield Country club will be the scene of the 1932 Ohio open golf tournament, Steve Zappe, club professional, and secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Professional Golfers association announced Thursday

Umpires "Kick" at Broadcast of Ted Husing

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 15 Radio Announcer Ted Husing, barred from Harvard's football games last fall because he implied with an adjective that the Crimson's style of play was not up to snuff, today faced an American league investigation prompted by a complaint of two umpires.

The umpires, George Moriarty and William Dineen, who officiated at the opening league game at Washington last Monday, voiced formal protest with the league officials yesterday at Husing's reported description of their decisions during the game's broadcast

The style with which both umpires inform a base runner "You're out!" was the crux of their complaint. They start with a sweeping gesture of the right arm at the left knee, the hand flat and end after a wide arc with the thumb jerked over the right shoulder

Both officials declared they received letters from baseball fans who listened to the broadcast indicating Husing announced the base runners safe when the gesture was started, and then informed the radio audience the umpires changed their minds when he saw the runners thumbed "out."

500 FANS WITNESS RENEWAL OF FISTIC WARFARE IN MARION

Lou Severo of Cleveland Features Opening Battles; Galion Scrapper Wins.

Nearly 500 fans witnessed the first boxing show of the season at the Steam Shovel gym when Lou Severo of Cleveland fought his way to a 10-round decision over Jimmy Martin of Buffalo in the feature performance

Setting a fast pace throughout the fight Severo piled up a big lead in the early rounds with some very clever infighting and then added to his advantage in the closing with heavy lefts and rights that had Martin on the verge of a knockout

After hanging on to avoid a knockout punch in the fifth, Martin came back in the sixth to divide the honors with Severo. Severo took every other round by a wide margin with the exception of the first, which was close Martin was down three times in the eighth and was on the mat when the bell rang in the ninth However, his iron heart kept him on his feet until the final bell

Larry Madge of Cleveland was just too good for Barney Stephens of Buffalo and the Cleveland boy won in the fifth round of the first main go match with a left hook to the jaw that floored Stephens for the count. Madge took the first two rounds, the third was even and Stephens took the fourth

Ray Terry of Marion is willing to mix it with any fighter but Joe Pangello of Galion was the wrong man to pick last night The referee stopped the match in the second round after Pangello had badly battered Terry, opening cuts on his lip and over the right eye Terry was in a bad way when the fight was stopped after a minute and 52 seconds of the second round

Frankie Blue of Marion knocked out Kid Kandel of Bucyrus in 1 45 after a fast one-round bout Billy Harry of Galion won the decision over K O Rinker of Bucyrus in a fast four-round tilt Louie Sprocco and Joie Caprinio two Marion lads, fought three rounds to a draw in the curtain raiser.

Johnny Gerry of Marion did a nice job as the third man in the ring.

INJURES HAND

Ernest Lombardi, hard hitting backstopper of the Cincinnati Reds will be out of the game for at least 10 days as the result of stopping a foul tip with the end of his finger. Lombardi's loss will remove some of that new found punch which the Redlegs have been exhibiting at the expense of the Chicago Cubs. One consolation for the Reds is he wont be gone long.

COLONELS GET OFF TO BRILLIANT START

Take Third Straight from Saints, 12-0; Columbus Drops Opener.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 15 Louisville's Colonels are off to another of their famous flying starts in the American association pennant race.

Behind some more fine pitching and some heavy clubbing, they dropped the defending champions from St. Paul 1 to 0 yesterday for their third straight victory.

For the first time since the season officially opened Tuesday, all eight entire were able to play ball yesterday The firing was characterized by heavy hitting, good and bad baseball

Kansas City and Columbus went 11 innings before an inaugural day crowd of 6 500 shivering fans. Columbus, blanked for six innings by Bob Osborne, pushed over seven runs in the seventh and eighth innings to tie the score, but lost the game 8 to 7 in the eleventh when its fifth pitcher, Sheriff Blake, walked three men and Marquardt smacked out a single for the winning tally

Milwaukee saddled Toledo's inaugural by edging out the Mud Hens, 5 to 4, before another freezing crowd of 4,500

Curt Walker's bat carried Indianapolis to its second victory against Minneapolis. His home run and a triple drove in the two runs, which beat the Millers, 4 to 2.

Miller Signs Again.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O. April 15 - Don Miller of Cleveland, head backfield coach at Ohio State university the last three years, Thursday signed a new one year contract.

SAMMY VANGLER TO TACKLE ROBIN REED IN RETURN BATTLE

Fast Mat Bout Likely When Welter Stars Clash on Shovel Mat.

Sammy Vangler, the [illegible] moving, smooth-working welterweight from Cincinnati fairly burned up the Steam Shovel mat two weeks ago in a battle with Robin Reed, will again attempt to take the measure of the Kentucky Ore, flash next Monday night in the main go of the regular weekly wrestling program at the Steam Shovel gym.

Vangler and Reed the latter holder of the midwest welterweight title belt, staged one of the best mat frays seen here in a long time in their previous meeting and fans will welcome their return engagement The Shovel gym will be packed for the first melee and indications are that even more will be on hand for the second fight for the title.

Vangler was the loser in the initial clash but not before he put up a brilliant fight Reed afterward described it as the hardest of his long career. The Jewish boy from Cincinnati is rough. He isn't like the usual run of welters When he gets into the ring he does so with the intention of battering his opponent into submission as quickly as possible If landing a vicious kick to the mid-section will accomplish his objective quicker than a flying mare applied orthodox [illegible] Vangler is all for the [illegible] None of this fooling around with him. And for just that reason fans are almost certain to be in large numbers to see the brawl.

In the semi-final go Sailor Arnold of Norfolk will mix holds with Joe Hacker of Toledo. Arnold and Hacker Schmidt are carded to battle two minutes with two falls to win. The battle will provide a good workout for the main go as both boys are big and rough and willing to go top speed.

There will be the usual preliminary bouts but the principals have not been named.

STOCK SHARES AGAIN RALLY

...s Record Biggest Ad- ...e: Entire Market De- ...velops Better Tone.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 15 — The ... market generally developed a distinctly better tone to- ... stocks and bonds extended ... very which started toward ... of the previous session. ...ership for Middle West ... was regarded in brokerage ... having cleared the at- ...e considerably, and financ- ...iers were encouraged by ... credit expansion indi- ...cated in the weekly federal reserve statement.

The utilities made striking gains in the stock market, particularly some of the thinly traded preferred issues. The list wobbled somewhat for a time in the morning, but turned distinctly strong by midday. North American preferred gained 5 points, and the Electric Power & Light senior issues, about 8.

Peoples Gas continued its climb with an advance of several points. Gains of 2 to 3 points appeared in Consolidated Gas, Public Service of N. J., American & Foreign preferred, Pacific Gas, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit, American Tobacco "B," and Colorado Fuel, while advances of a point or so were numerous, embracing U. S. Steel and other leaders. American Telephone recovered an early drop of nearly 3. Auburn dropped 5 to a new low, and failed to come back much. The financing problems of Middle West utilities and other Insull holding companies had injected an oppressive element of uncertainty into the financial markets for some time. Sweeping declines in the securities of these holding companies had already discounted receivership, so that actual news of the action in Chicago brought considerable relief. Furthermore, the steps taken by Electric Bond and Share to scotch rumors about its financial position including announcement of a one-year extension of subsidiary loans, tended to fortify the utility list generally.

GRAIN PRICES TURN LOWER

Reports of Moisture Relief in Dry Area Has Bearish Effect.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 15—Likelihood of some moisture relief in drought territory led to early downturns today. Indications, however, were for continued absence of rain throughout districts where moisture was most needed. Opening at ⅝ to 1 cent decline, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started ¼@⅜ off and subsequently steadied.

Giving an advantage to wheat bears were setbacks in Liverpool quotations, a development attributed to profit taking in anticipation of more favorable weather reports from the United States winter wheat belt. Estimates were current that France would need to import 25,000,000 bushels of wheat before harvest of the new French crop. There were also suggestions that Germany might cut her wheat import duty.

Although bearish domestic winter wheat conditions were dominating factor, significance was in some quarters attached to a falling off in the volume of southern hemisphere shipments of wheat. The total shipments from below the equator this week were but 7,670,000 bushels against 9,024,000 the week previous. A good sized overnight export business in Canadian wheat was also noted. Corn and oats averaged lower with wheat.

Provisions responded to downturns of cereals, despite setadiness of hog values.

EXTRA GUARDS ON DUTY AT OHIO PEN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 15—Extra guards, including city radio cruiser crews, were on duty at Ohio penitentiary last night and today for some unannounced reason. City and penitentiary officials were reticent to discuss the special precaution.

It was generally believed that Warden Preston E. Thomas called on the city for guard aid when he learned something was "brewing" within the walls.

WAR DEBT QUESTION AVOIDED BY MELLON

Ambassador to England Sees Gradual Adjustment in London Speech.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 15—That portion of British officialdom and the public which looked for some indication that the mission of Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon was to arrange a revision, or perhaps a cancellation of war debts were disappointed today.

At the annual dinner of the Pilgrims society last night Mr. Mellon drank champagne toasts to the king and to the President of the United States and reaffirmed his faith in capitalism, "or whatever name may be applied to the system which has been evolved in adapting individual initiative to the machine age," but he said nothing about war debts or reparations.

Referring to the financial situation, he said he did not believe in "any quick or spectacular remedies for the ills from which the world is suffering."

He recalled that during his lifetime he has passed through many crises which invariably, he said, followed wars.

"Even while we meet here tonight readjustments are taking place the world over and these will continue until the balance has been restored," he said.

GOV. MURRAY DENIES CAMPAIGN IS OVER

Snorts Defiance at Suggestion He Is Out of Presidential Race.

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 15—With a defiant snort for anyone who say's he's going to quit a perfectly good Democratic presidential race, W. H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray is back home to run the governor's office the way he wants it run.

Hoarse but vehement, he arrived last night, willing to let the curious "go ahead and confuse yourselves" as to exactly why he rushed away from an incomplete campaign tour in Oregon.

As for the presidential race:

"I never quit a fight," he said "Franklin Roosevelt will not be nominated."

SAGINAW, Mich., April 15—Michigan's 38 delegates to the Democratic national convention today stood pledged to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, "as long as in the best judgment of the delegation party welfare so dictates."

A resolution demanded repeal of national and state prohibition amendments and laws, with substitution of state control of liquor. Modificationists who sought to confine the convention's prohibition expression to a referendum appeal were routed by speakers who declared the Democratic party "has pussy-footed long enough on the prohibition question."

Six other persons collapsed from excitement.

Swindle-Proof Scheme Is Sought in Child Hunt; Secrecy Shrouds Search.

New Jersey and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

Col. Lindbergh and his wife appealed last night for secrecy in the attempts to deal with the kidnap gang. In Norfolk, Va., two negotiators who have been in close touch with Lindbergh for days, returned home after prolonged absence with a non-committal statement.

"We are continuing to work on the case," said Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage and John Hughes Curtis, boat builder. "During our absence from Norfolk we have conferred four times with Col. Lindbergh at Hopewell. Regret we cannot give any further information at this time."

"It is still of the utmost importance for us and our representatives to move about without being questioned and followed," said Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh's statement, which also expressed appreciation for past cooperation by the press.

STIMSON WELCOMED ON PARIS ARRIVAL

PARIS, April 15 — Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson arrived in Paris shortly before noon today from Havre, where he disembarked from the liner Ile De France this morning.

He was greeted at the station by Premier Andre Tardieu, former Premier Laval and a large crowd.

Mr. Stimson came from Havre in a private car. When he alighted at the St. Lazare station he stepped out upon the brilliant red platform carpet that ordinarily is brought out only for royalty. Among the crowd which greeted him were several of those who accompanied former Premier Laval on his trip to Washington last fall.

ENOS D. IREY FILES $25,000 SUIT HERE

Gale Ireland Named Defendant in Auto Collision Suit.

Damages totalling $25,275 are sought by Enos D. Irey of Waldo in two actions against Gale Ireland of Marion, filed in common pleas court.

Irey seeks $25,000 for personal injuries suffered in a collision of his automobile with one driven by Ireland at the intersection of Prospect and Columbia streets March 29, 1931. He also asks $275 for damages to his automobile and clothing.

Irey was driving south on Prospect street, and Ireland was going east on Columbia street at the time of the accident, according to the petition. Columbia street, Irey asserts, is a "stop" street, and Ireland was negligent in failing to halt his automobile, he charges. He also contends that Ireland was going 50 miles an hour.

Concussion of the brain, injuries which will necessitate removal of one kidney, and loss of 50 pounds are among the injuries suffered by Irey, he asserts. Frank Wiedemann is counsel for Irey.

Damage Suit Settled

The damage suit of Walter Sage of 611 Girard avenue against the A. F. Koons Co. of Columbus and others was settled in common pleas court yesterday. The amount of the settlement was not announced. Sage, an employe in the office of County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens, was struck by a truck while working on a road survey job north of here, and was confined to the hospital several weeks by injuries suffered in the accident.

License Issued

A license to wed was issued in probate court yesterday to Kenneth Garn, a railroad worker of 726 Gill avenue and Gladys Ream, a bookkeeper of 392 Leader street.
